Washington's Experiences with Hero

Washington had as much trouble with hero worshippers, and detested them as heartily as Bismarck or Tennyson or

Wagner in our day. After the Revolution, while Europe was seething with the tumult of impend-ing political upheavals, many were the fine gentlemen from the old world, aye, and gentlewomen no less, who came reeking of strange perfumes, pungent of snuff and exhibiting the graces of a dancing master, a strange, artificial, bewigged, beribboned and fantastic collection of cranks. These mingled at the doors of Mount Vernon with Washington's plain, strong countrymen, and each party wondered greatly at the

When the inflicton became intolerable Washington would vanish by day on his big horse, or by night sneak off early to bed, leaving his secretary, Lear, to entertain the bores. The rules of Virginian hospitality forbade any more energetic protest against intrusion.

All were made welcome.

In another way the admiration of two continents showed itself less of fensively. Washington received gifts from everywhere. The key of the Bastile hung on his wall. Charles Frederick, Duke of Baden, sent him an eastern narghileh. An admirer in Eng-land—where he had many—sent him, boxed up, a big and fine mantel piece of considerable architectual beauty. Rare trees grew in his grounds, animals of European strain first appeared in America upon the grounds of the Pre-sident. Dogs and donkeys, busts and pictures, testified mutely or vociferously to the esteem in which the man was held, abroad as well as at home.

$10 Tours to Niagara Falls.

The next of the series of personally conducted tours to Niagaria Falls, via Pennsylvania Eailroad, will leave Washington on August S. The rate for round trip tickets, good for ten days, is $10 from Washington; good for ten days, is $10 from Washington; proportionate rates from other points. A special train of Pullman parlor cars and day coaches will be run, and a tourist agent and chaperon will accompany the tour. The tickets will permit of stop off at Watkins and Rochester in each direction, and at Buffale on the return trip.
